MONDAY, Sept. 7, 1857.

"Hurrah, hurraw, hurraw!" as Glorious Jim cry early one Saturday morning, when we met him returning from his symposium with the Sons of Malta. The crisis of our struggle has come at last; and either in victory or defeat we shall be glad to see an end of it. The wear and tear of nerves, brain, veins and sinews evoked in the excitement of such a contest cannot long be endurable by one of your correspondent's nerve-sanguine temperament. And only that next Thursday promises an honorable and triumphant end to our term of service for the present campaign, we should literally be compelled to desert and take refuge once more on that branch which gave shelter to our Tammany musings. But the end is in sight, and we have every assurance that a few wing-flaps more will land us on the shores of victory: the Red Sea of the struggle is overpast, and we may now recapitulate the steps which have led us thus far out of Pharaoh Fernando's bondage.

THE CLASSIC BATTLE-GROUND.

Syracuse has been memorable for many an exciting contest amongst the Democratic forces. Some say that the salt springs there are the tears of political mourners. The Globe Hotel and Market Hall are (moderately speaking) not less classic than the Parthenon and Colliseum of ancient Rome; but no contest ever heretofore witnessed there, until all the heat, excitement and fever of the past desperate Democratic wranglings, can at all equal or approach the fierce nature of the conflict to be commenced there on next Thursday's dawn. Our municipal autocrat has declared without reserve that "just as certain as he sets his foot within the limits of Syracuse, will he leave that fold as recognized master of our State Democracy;" and that he "defies all the influences which may be exerted against him." To his factotum, Wilson Small, he declared on last Tuesday evening that "he had taken charge of this business himself; that he had organized the State himself; that the cry of 'persecuted but not vanquished,' though stale and proved false in the City, would still have potency over the rural delegates; and, finally, that the Convention would be found a mere echo of his master-voice." Whether his Honor's fatuity leads him to believe these statements of his own, we cannot say; but most probably they are only another fragment of the "confidence game" by which he seeks to quell the late mutiny in his Cecile or Wilson Small Committee.

PROSPECTIVE VIEW OF THE STRUGGLE.

To survey the coming battle, not forgetful of the past; to present the issues; make known the relative strength of the contestants, and to give some data on which your readers may predict the probable issue, if it be true that future events cast their shadows before—all these points are within the mission of your correspondent, and that mission shall be fulfilled as compactly as the intricate nature of the dispute will admit.

FERNANDO WOOD'S MONOMANIA.

"Whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad,"—as witness this attempt of Fernando Wood to grasp our State control. A more foolish, rash and suicidal enterprise was never entered on by mortal and inexperienced man—not even by Daedalus, a famous hack-driver in the purlieus of ancient city, when ambitioning to guide the chariot of the sun. The rum-and-plunder system on which his Honor's power has been based, has happily no foothold outside the limits of Manhattan. Without the slightest pretence to an existing organization—without even the lying semblance of regularity—against every principle of right, and upon the boldest and baldest game of Peter Funkism, Fernando Wood expects the representatives of our State Democracy to sustain him in a political fraud more atrocious than all the enormities of the Marvine swindle. Standing alone—without one independent man at his side—with a private and official reputation as black as Erebus—without one redeeming personal or public trait, and arrayed against all the leading independent men of the Democratic Party in this City—all the members of Congress against him—every prominent representative Democrat crying shame against him—with nothing but the confidence game and effrontery to back him, he still in his maudlin dreams stretches forth his hand to grasp an imaginary crown; which crown, should it ever reach his grasp, will be a crown of thorns, disgrace and undying anguish to the whole Democracy of the State.

WOOD ON "POLITICAL AZTECS" FROM THE RURAL DISTRICTS.

It is said by his Honor to his myrmidons that the country delegates to the State Convention—or, as he superciliously styles them, "the gents from the rural districts"—are a very different class from those he has encountered in our City; that they will not look into the merits of the controversy, nor examine, nor reflect—as both would be painful and unusual processes; that to avoid responsibility they will weakly admit or reject both sides of the contesting claimants; that he has effected an organization of the State, and knows as well what the verdict will be as he would know the verdict of a Jury which he had packed through his subordinates. His familiar jest is that "the gents from the rural districts" are "political Aztecs," who, though dwarfs for all purposes of injury against him, will yet, from the very circumstance of their alleged inferiority, "become giants in building up and sustaining him."

SOLEMN PROTEST BY THE BIRD.

Against this theory your correspondent enters his formal protest, deeming it his province to present the issues which will have to be decided next Thursday—and show the nature of the struggle maintained in our City for Democratic purity and independence.

WOOD'S MEN IN BUCKRAM MUSTERED AND GINGERED.

But before proceeding to the detailed consideration of this question, we desire to give one scene from the Mayor's office as illustrative of his tactics, and to group together as compactly as we can the names of the leading men of the Democracy in this City, and their position in the contest. For the last ten days his Honor has held Cabinet Councils in his private office with all his "prime" ministers of evil to aid him in completing his arrangements for the management and capture of the State Convention. These "distinguished personages" on his side are, Wm. J. Brisly, Superintendent of Buildings under Charley Devlin, Wood's appointee for Street Commissioner, of whom (Devlin) the public had some recent developements, and of whom much more, in reference to the contract books, are shortly coming; Richard Busteed, his Honor's "Breeches' nominee" for Counsel to the Corporation, better known as "Galerious Dick;" Richard B. Connolly, made County Clerk by Wood, better known as "Slippery Dick;" Habeas Corpus Russell, Wilson Small, his Honor's Tax Commissioner; Charles H. Ring, his Honor's Superintendent of Repairs under Dev-lin aforesaid; Benjamin P. Fairchild, who does such jobs for his Honor as the Ferris and Callahan and Lexington stage line, Superintendent of Streets under the aforesaid serviceable Devlin; Mr. Michael Tuomy, Commissary General of the Liquor Department on his Honor's staff; and Mr. Josiah Sutherland, the Peter Funk and Turveydrop of the establishment, who "does" the respectability and deportment of the concern, and who is known, from the melancholy appearance his visage has assumed under the disastrous fortunes of his leader, as "Red-oyster Sutherland."

HIS HONOR'S NAPOLEONIC COUNCIL OF STATE AFFAIRS.

Here, seated amongst this motley crew, our potentate holds his council. He claims to have "the State under thorough discipline and organization,' through circulars addressed to postmasters (of which there has been some account), as well as by Christy & Wood's Minstrels, whose political wanderings will form an amusing chapter, perhaps, at some future day. Here the autocrat, sitting bolt upright, in Henry Clay's most vigorous style, the table before him is littered with books and papers in lustrious confusion, while behind is a mahogany stand surmounted by a gilded eagle, and with the word "STATE," conspicuously displayed on it in gilded letters. His cabinet bears three pendenous folios, indorsed respectively "L. C.," (lower counties,) "A. and V.," (Albany and vicinity,) and "W. C.," (western counties.) These books, he assures his followers, contain information from every part of the State, with the names of his leading "Aztecs" in the several election districts, and the data of other appliances by which he is to control the State Convention. Spread before him is a map of the State of New-York, over which, in imitation of Napoleon and Charles XII., he pretends to pore with thoughtful brow. Sometimes settling back in his chair, with his right forefinger resting on his temple, he sits wrapt in apparent thought, as if occupied in calculating statistics. Ever and anon he peers at the map before him, and tapping his fingers at certain salient points, gives a great sigh of relief, and looks round at his admiring crew. Then, as if struck by some rushing thought, he hastily seizes a volume labelled "W. C." or "A. and V.," as the case may be, and after a hasty inspection of map and page, the muscular smile once more returns, and he cries, "All that county is mine!"

POSITION OF THE DEMOCRATIC CITY LEADERS IN THE CONTEST.

Leaving this scene we shall proceed to the more extended field of the Democratic Party; and having shown in the last paragraph who are his Honor's followers, let us now recite the brilliant list of those whom his tactics has arrayed against him; and this will refute satisfactorily we think, the statement made by Wood's instruments that his opponents are merely the desperate little Spartan band, adhering to the fortunes of James S. Libby, in opposition to the regular nomination which Wood had then received.

First, as to the Democratic Electors of the City who received each 40,000 odd votes at last election, we have on the side of Tammany Hall and honesty, ALL the Democratic Electors of the City except Mr. Michael Tuomy, who is called "Mike," and patted on the head by his Honor. Of the members of Congress against him we have Daniel E. Sickles, Horace F. Clark, Wm. B. Maclay, Elijah Ward and John Cochrane, being five out of six; and John Kelly, (the sixth,) whose position is not defined, is the author of the reform programme in the Tammany Society which resulted in the establishment of the Cooper Committee.

Of the Federal officers, there are opposed to him Isaac V. Fowler, Postmaster; Emanuel B. Hart, Surveyor; Isaiah Rynders, U. S. Marshal; George N. Sanders, Navy Agent, and John McKeon, U. S. District-Attorney. To the position of Mr. Schell, Collector, we shall refer in another place. Peter B. Sweeny, the Hard member of the State Central Committee, is also "bitterly agin him." Of the veteran leaders of the Democracy, we have such men as Charles O'Conor, James T. Brady, Robert J. Dillon, F. B. Cutting, Gustavus A. Conover, James Lee, Francis I. Tillou, James J. Roosevelt, Philip W. Engs, Joseph M. Marsh, Isaac Bell, Jr., Andrew H. Mickle, Richard T. Compton, and countless others of the recognized leaders, old and young, to say nothing of the more ardent rising race, who are rapidly assuming the position of pioneers in the advanced guard. Of these we have, for honesty and Tammany Hall, Edward Cooper, John Y. Savage, Jr., Nelson J. Waterbury, Abraham S. Hewitt, C. Godfrey Gunther, Thomas C. Fields, John Richardson, James W. Smith, Sam D. Vanderheyden, John T. Hoffman, John H. Anthon, and a host of others, upon whom will hereafter devolve the duty of maintaining the Democratic cause.

PRECISE QUESTIONS FOR THE STATE CONVENTION.

Now as to the precise questions for the State Convention: On the 1st of January last there were two bodies organized in Tammany Hall, each claiming to be the Regular General Committee, one under the auspices of Fernando Wood, and the other of the independent men of the party who resisted the infamous frauds of Wood's primary election system. His Honor, through his police, secured possession of the General Committee room, admitting none save those who had tickets of admission from himself, and thus secured the fraudulent semblance of an organization in the Regular Council Chamber of the party. The other Committee thus forcibly excluded, then organized in the reading-room of Tammany Hall, the Committee presided over by John Y. Savage, jr., Wood having appointed Wilson Small as Chairman of the bogus body. The question then arose as to which of the two bodies was entitled to possession, and therefore to be deemed the Regular Central Organization for the government of the party.

TRUE HISTORY OF THE CONTEST.

This question was referred to the Council of Sachems, the elected representatives of the Tammany Society and Trustees of the Building, who, in virtue of the right of ownership and the traditional party usages heretofore prevailing in many similar cases, investigated the question as to which, if either, truly represented the masses; and came to the conclusion, and so decreed, that both were tainted with the frauds of the primary election system, and that neither wholly represented the democracy. This decided, they passed resolutions, excluding both from the possession of Tammany Hall.

VERITABLE HISTORY CONTINUED.

Pending consideration as to how a new General Committee should be elected, Hon. John Kelly introduced a plan for the settlement of the controversy by the establishment of a General Convention to reform the system of primary elections and provide for the election of a General Committee. It was distinctly stated, and a part of this plan, that the Convention, for the time being, should be charged with all the powers of a General Committee, thereby, of course, disbanding and putting out of existence the two heretofore contesting claimants. This Convention was to be comprised of delegates selected equally by the delegations from the various Wards to the Savage and Small Committees; and an umpire for each Ward was to be selected by the Council of Sachems—a wholly unprejudiced and perfectly impartial body. Now it is to be observed that this scheme made necessary the consent of the delegates and both the contending organizations, and each, by agreeing to it, recognized, of necessity, the equality of existence in the other. A majority of the delegates in each Ward, from both Committees, agreed to this plan, and appointed delegates from their own number to this Reform Convention—88 out of 110 of the Savage men signing the agreement and deputation for said Convention, and 89 of the 110 Small men doing just the same, as the papers to be presented to the State Convention will abundantly prove.

ORGANIZATION OF THE REFORM CONVENTION.

This Reform Convention was duly organized for the time being by James T. Brady and Elijah F. Purdy as successive Chairmen—adopted a system of local organizations for the election of a new General Committee, and having finished its work adjourned sine die within the time allotted for its existence. Ward associations pursuant to the plan adopted by said Convention were established; and as directed by said Convention, five members were elected from each Ward as a General Committee, which has since organized in Tammany Hall, by the election of Edward Cooper as Chairman, and which is now in the full, sole and exclusive possession thereof.

WHAT THE (EXCREDIBLY) SMALL COMMITTEE DID WHEN GABRIEL BLEW HIS TRUMPET.

Hereupon a small portion of the Small Committee, already disbanded as aforesaid, was recalled into existence by Fernando Wood, on that individual's discovering that the popular suffrage had resulted in the election of a new General Committee, of whom only a small minority were prepared to be his supple tools. But of the Small Committee thus recalled into galvanic life, not one-half, nor near one-half, were members as it claimed to exist in January.

THE ONLY QUESTIONS TO BE ANSWERED.

This is the true origin and these the sole points to be presented for decision by the State Convention. The Savage Committee, keeping good faith and according to the agreement which they signed in conjunction with the Small Committee, declare their perfect willingness to disband at any moment and recognize the Cooper Committee as the sole organization, on the Small Committee's being compelled to do the same. And the sole question is—

Shall the Small body be sustained in their original frauds and subsequent breach of faith for the exclusive benefit of such a personage as Wood, and to the ruin and disgrace of the Democratic party?

Or will the State Convention in its sovereign power uphold Tammany Hall with all its old traditions and prestige of regularity and victory?

ARGUMENTS AND ANSWERS TO THE (EXCREDIBLY) SMALL MEN.

The Small men will say, we understand—1st. That they hail from Tammany Hall. Answered by the addition "from the soup kitchen of the building;" and further that they will be kept out of that last resort hereafter, as the lessee declares he will no longer jeopard his lease, and have his house disgraced by the assemblage of such a crowd of scapegraces and political mourners, and the small men are now making arrangements to hold their future meetings at the Widow LYNCH's in Cherry-street.

2d. That they never as a Committee, formally assembled, agreed to the organization of the Reform Convention. Answered, that 89 out of 110 expressly in writing, solemnly pledged themselves over their signatures to the arrangement, and by every act, including actual participation as constituents of the Convention, they recognized, ratified and adopted that arrangement; and never objected until WOOD found it necessary to resurrect them as his own particular weapon of disorganization and to carry out his avowed intention o either ruling or ruining.

THE JUDAS ISCARIOTS RELIED ON TO BETRAY THE CAUSE.

Wood boasts that he will be enabled to secure the election of delegates to Syracuse, who will go there only for the purpose of betraying the cause which they will fraudently assume to represent. Under pretext of "Union and Harmony," they will advocate (says Wood) the recognition of the Small body, to the destruction of the authority and claims of the regular Committee. We can only say, that men who consent to occupy a position of such infamy will be worthy of the Chief who incites them, but will find themselves powerless to accomplish their evil designs. Judas Iscariot, who flourished at a period anterior to primary elections, may be considered entitled to a higher position in the judgment of a charitable world, than the miserable knaves who would descend to such dirty and wretched tricks. Education by common schools, and moral instruction, with the use of the globes, had not then become enrolled in the constabulary force of social improvement; and, besides, Judas may be considered as part of the preordained scheme of our election to grace. For him, therefore, there may possibly be some excuse, but it is obvious there there can be none for these would-be Wood-bribed Syracusean reptiles, who are to attempt to sting to death the bosoms that have warmed them into ungrateful life. Let the State Convention mark these Tammany Judases. Where's Dillaye—that "ruinous Delaye"—as he is now universally referred to?

WHAT WOOD THREATENS TO DO AT SYRACUSE.

Wood declares that he will go in person to storm the State Convention, and receive the capitulation which he has promised to his followers. We have seen the rough draft of his intended speech, written by Alick Ming, and would give it in full had we time to copy. He will set himself in a Henry Clay attitude, pull up his short collar, pull that plug of lemon-flavored tobacco out of his mouth, and, stroking his muscular mouth with his right hand, while the left reposes in the folds of his military-buttoned coat, he will commence a pathetic appeal for protection against the attempt to break down him—"a humble man"—and almost weep as he refers to the persecutions by which he has been assailed—practising the part of "Uriah Heep," but with less success. He will then launch out into some leaden-headed generalities about municipal rights, and indulge in a variety of sycophantic whinings, all terminating with his favorite epigram (made by Billy Cook) of "Persecuted, but not vanquished."

THE MUNICIPAL QUESTION DISCUSSED.

Now, on the municipal question we have five propositions to present, and the State Convention will do well to consider them. First, that Wood's known corruptions and rascalities in the Police force, and other monstrous abuses, all for personal ends, provoked the legislation which resulted in the unwise and unjust laws of the last Legislature. Second, that his resistance to the laws, under pretext that he considered them unconstitutional, is an attempt to engraft upon the Democratic faith one of the most odious principles of the Abolition agitators. Third, that his resistance to the law and forcing the Police force to take sides with him, resulted in the discharge of all the Democratic members of that body who, but for Wood's resistance, were expressly retained in the public service by the very provisions of the law itself—thus sacrificing the interests of the party to his own selfish and unholy ambition. Fourth, that the question presented by the obnoxious laws will be decided at the next November general election of members of the Legislature; while the election of Mayor, in which he alone is interested, takes place in the month of December—one month after—and cannot therefore affect the ultimate result: and fifth, that this attempt to obtain recognition of his bogus and fraudulent organization, is part of a scheme to regain a foothold in the general organization of the Democratic Party in the State, for the advancement of what he styles his triumphal march to the State Capitol, and thence to the honors of Washington.

THE REACT POSITION OF COLLECTOR SCHELL.

Mr. Schell's position in this matter is widely misrepresented, and therefore, of course, greatly misunderstood. During all his career he has been opposed to Wood, and at last election voted against him for Mayor. When appointed Collector, Mr. Buchanan instructed him in somewhat the following words: "Aldermen Wood came here," said the President, "expecting to dictate my appointments for your City. I know his antecedents; I know him well, and have always refused to recognize his pretended claims. No appointment which I have made is due to him, but I do not wish to go further to hasten the end of his career. The end of such men is as sure as heaven's justice, and I wish that he should be left to the natural processes of decay. The position in which you are about to be placed is one of great power and patronage; and all I ask is that you shall simply keep your hands off him," concluding, with that well-known cock of the eye, —"and let the devil get his own in his own time." Mr. Schell has faithfully acted on these instructions, and that is his position.

SCRIPTURE DICK'S VERSION OF WOOD'S NEW HARD AND SOFT FIGHT.

In conclusion, we may refer to Wood's amusing attempt to revive the old "Hard" and "Soft" fight, for the purpose of securing Schell to his interests, and appropriating the influence of Dickinson, Croswell, Gideon J. Tucker, Mather, and the other self-chosen Elect of the National Democracy. But the trap sprung before the game was within it. Croswell looked at the apparatus, ran his fingers through his ambrosial locks, a sardonic grin passing over his Voltairesish face, and with a decisive sneer kicked it into fragments. Even Mather, longing for a return of the happy day when he might again acquire importance through new divisions, would have nothing to do with it. And Tucker, rubbing his spectacles, fixed upon the great political and commercial Diddler a look of mingled amazement and amusement. But this cock wouldn't fight. Scripture Dick on being written to replied that Wood might establish a "Hard" party of his own—of "hard drinkers, hard swearers, hard hars, hard livers, hard swindlers and hard characters generally," making common cause against all who were too "soft" to be dishonest, "of which party," added Scripture Dick, "as Chief of the Metropolitan Hard Characters, Mr. Wood might be an appropriate leader. But for himself he wished neither to be a 'smuggler nor a pirate.' This version of Dickinson's has been the standing joke of politicians for the past nine days, and some even think it has increased his chances of being made "Nag No. 5" in our Presidential sweepstakes. Obediently, Exceedingly,

A BIRD IN THE BUSH.

A Meeting of the Cooper Democratic General Committee—Selection of Delegates to the State Convention—Adoption of an Address.

The Cooper Democratic General Committee met at Tammany Hall last evening and selected delegates to the State Convention which is to meet at Syracuse on Thursday next.

Nearly every member was present, and the outside pressure was very great, but yet there was no disturbance.

The Sub-Committee on Convention appointed at a previous meeting to select delegates to the State Convention retired to one of the private meeting rooms where they remained until nearly 10 o'clock, in secret session, making their selections and preparing their report.

The proceedings in this Committee were reported to be very harmonious.

Immediately thereafter the General Committee met in the usual meeting hall above stairs, EDWARD COOPER in the Chair, B. S. HEDGES and R. G. WALMSLEY, Secretaries.

After some formal business, Mr. R. J. DILLON, from the Sub-Committee, submitted the names selected for delegates.

The list was received with favor, and was unanimously adopted.

Hon. JOHN COCHRANE then submitted the following address, in the shape of a preamble and resolutions, which was unanimously adopted.

Whereas, At the commencement of the present year two separate bodies of Democrats organized themselves in Tammany Hall, one with WILSON SMALL as Chairman, and the other with JOHN Y. SAVAGE, JR., as Temporary Chairman; and each claimed to be the Democratic Republican General Committee, and entitled to the exclusive use of Tammany Hall; and

Whereas, Such claim was duly submitted to the Council of Sachems of the Tammany Society, in accordance with the provisions of the laws of Tammany Hall, for their decision, as to which, of the two organizations was the regular Committee and entitled to the use of that building; and

Whereas, The Council of Sachems decided that neither of the said Committees was regularly and properly elected, but that each of the said organizations was tainted with frauds and irregularities, and therefore prohibited the use of Tammany Hall by either; and as there was no General Committee entitled to use that building, the Council further requested the Democratic Republican Electors of the several Wards, to elect delegates to a General Committee, at an election to be held in each Ward under the direction of three inspectors, one to be appointed by the Savage Committee, one by the Small Committee, and the third by the Council of Sachems, which action was taken by the affirmative vote of seven Sachems, the other six dissenting therefrom; and

Whereas, Such action was contested by the Small Committee, which refused to appoint Inspectors for the new elections; and it was conceded on all sides that the frauds, corruptions and abuses of the primary election system, as theretofore existing, were too gross and iniquitous to be longer tolerated; and

Whereas, Hon. JOHN KELLY, one of the minority of the Council of Sachems, thereupon, as a measure of union and conciliation, and to remedy the evils in the party organization, which were universally conceded, submitted a proposition, which was unanimously adopted by the Council, for the organization of a convention of five members from each Ward, two to be chosen by the delegation from the Ward in the Savage Committee, two by the delegation from the Ward in the Small Committee, and the fifth by the Council of Sachems, which convention was to act as the General Committee, and was also to mature and adopt a plan for the reorganization of the party, and the election of a new General Committee, previous to the 1st day of July then next, when the said convention was finally to adjourn; and

Whereas the last recited action of the Council of Sachems was ratified by the Small Committee, by the direct participation of more than five-sixths of its members in the formation or organization of the said conventions, and by the Savage Committee by the like participation of more than five-sixths of its members; and such Convention was accordingly chosen and organized. And

Whereas the said Convention adopted a plan for the reorganization of the Democratic Republican Electors of the City of New-York, by a vote of 59 to 19, which action was subsequently sanctioned by a majority of the members not voting; by which plan all future primary elections were to be held, by enrolled organizations of the Democratic voters of the several wards, whose names were to be taken from the poll lists of the last general election by the delegation from the Ward in the Convention, and in which case was taken to guard the rights of all by providing that, in case the delegation did not unanimously agree upon a list, each member should select an equal number; and further, in pursuance of said plan and of the power delegated to it, called an election for a new General Committee, to be chosen in accordance with the rules of the new organization. And

Whereas, Under such call this General Committee was elected, being composed of members of both of the former so-called General Committees, and of other persons who were not members of either, and was thereupon organized and installed in the use and occupation of Tammany Hall—whereupon the said Committee, having completed its labors, finally adjourned previous to the said first day of July; and

Whereas, Some of the former members of the Small Committee, with others whom they have admitted to their Association, have revived their organization and have met from time to time, surreptitiously, in the Restaurant and other public rooms in Tammany Hall, open to men of all parties, and in utter violation of good faith, and to the disturbance of the harmony of the Democratic Party; and

Whereas, The Savage Committee, in consequence of such action, has also revived and claims a right to continue its organization, unless the agreement previously entered into by all sides is adhered to; and

Whereas, This Committee, notwithstanding the want of any ground for the action of the two rival ex-Committees, and the strength which it had in the clear revivalists of its ward organization, for the purpose of exerting every effort to reconcile all differences in the ranks of the Democratic Party, and preserving the benefits of a single organization, whereby power should be distributed, even by partisans, appointed a Committee of Conference, which met the Committees from the so-called Small and Savage Committees. And

Whereas, At the conference thereupon held, after an interchange of opinions and propositions, it was proposed by the representatives of the so-called Small Committee, that a new General Committee should be formed, of five from each Ward, two to be chosen by the delegation from the Ward in the Small Committee, two by the delegation from the Ward in the Savage Committee, and one by the delegation from the Ward in this Committee; which new Committee should elect the delegates to the State Convention; but with further provisions which would be equal to the fairness of [illegible] by virtue of an old claim.

It is said that a Maritime conference of various European powers is about to be held at Paris to consider the subject of collisions at sea, and to adopt measures for their future prevention.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times, writing on the evening of Monday, says:

A letter received here to-day from Jerusalem, of the 1st inst., announces that disturbances had taken place in the neighborhood of that city, attended with serious loss of life. It appears that the turbulent factions in that country had taken advantage of the moonlight nights of Djemain, the northern boundary of the province, and a sanguinary collision had taken place at the very gates of Jerusalem. Twenty-two Arabs and two women were killed. The peasants fought with great desperation, armed with swords, and the inhabitants of the adjacent villages were alarmed, and the inhabitants of the adjacent villages were preparing to take parts in the quarrel. It was feared that in a few days the conflagration would become general. Aouni Gosn, an old martial chief, was acting with among the Dissidents, and was capable of giving the Turkish authorities much trouble. There is a population of 20,000 souls at Jerusalem.

THE OCEAN TELEGRAPH.

ENCOURAGING PROSPECTS FOR ANOTHER ATTEMPT TO LAY THE CABLE.

From the London Times, Aug. 24.

The failure of the attempt to link the States of the American Union with England by the electric chain is no doubt to be deplored. We must confess, however, that we rather feel that the failure is but a temporary one. That difficulties such, for example, had the depths of the Atlantic presented insurmountable obstacles in the way of the ultimate success of the enterprise—had the difficulties been such as to place it in the power or within the means of any one nation to work out the undertaking, we have been accustomed to wait until the last moment of success had helped us to surmount the difficulties, however, of all this is the case. If the recent attempt has proved anything, it has proved that the cable can be paid out without breaking, then [illegible] the Niagara and the Agamemnon have proved that the cable can be paid out without breaking in stormy weather, the vessels being tossed about by the waves, and the cable passing from the stern of the vessel, and that the cable can be laid down in the deepest water. It has proved that the difficulties which experience had been affirmed in numerous instances, that the cable can be laid down to the depths of the Atlantic between the Old and the New Worlds, and that, when laid down, it will carry the spark from shore to shore with unerring certainty. This, at least, is some comfort in the midst of our disappointment. It is clear that had the arrangements on board the vessel which had to lay the first part of the cable been completely complete the greater portion of the task might never have been attempted, and the remaining portion have been in a fair way to successful completion. The fault cannot even be laid upon the machinery, although this has probably not been the most efficient which could have been devised for the purpose. According to the account we have received from the Secretary to the Atlantic Telegraph Company, it seems that there was not a sufficiently properly skilled person to attend to the operation of paying out the cable—and hence the accident. It would, of course, be too much to assert that had the ship held on her way some other form of accident might not have occurred, but clearly the accident happened in the paying of the chain, as it actually did [illegible] and [illegible] the cable. On the 10th the vessel had paid out 335 miles of cable, and had [illegible] 146 miles from shore. At about 9 o'clock P. M. on the day the vessel was proceeding at about the rate of [illegible] knots, when the cable was running out at a rate [illegible] with the speed of the ship. Throughout the night of the vessel made tacks and the flight of the ship, and its speed was gradually reduced to about five knots, which rate was maintained until the occurrence of the accident, which happened at about 4 o'clock in the morning. The manner and cause of the rupture are intelligible enough.

The wind and sea had both increased; as a natural consequence, the ship was pitched with some degree of force; the stern, in other words, was alternately lifted and depressed, in a force, the cable running out at the stern depended, in a force, the cable running out at the stern depended upon the speed of the ship; the force was at that moment suddenly applied to a by retarding force which had been applied was [illegible], or at least eased, the cable would be instantly and violently strained. The weight of all the cable, and of all the cable which had not actually gone down to its rest on the bottom of the ocean, would be applied to one end, and the weight of the ship to the other. The result, as the ship's stern was lifted upwards by the force of the sea, was a very [illegible] jerk, which the strength of the cable was not calculated to withstand, and it snapped. "On examining the machine," writes our correspondent, "which was otherwise in perfect order, I found that the breaks had not been released, and to this, or to the [illegible] of the break being turned the wrong way, may be attributed the stoppage, and the consequent fracture of the cable. When the rate of the vessel grew slower, as the ship dropped her stern in the swell, the break should have been eased." The supposition had, in fact, gone to sea with an insufficient staff. Whether this was the result of ignorance, or of mistaken economy, it is not for us to say. But, speaking after the fact, we now know that the presence on board of half a dozen skilled mechanics capable of regulating the break would have averted the accident. One mechanic only was left in charge of the machine, and when the writer of the report was on his way to the fore part of the ship to ascertain her rate of speed he heard the machine stop. The order to ease the break and stop the ship's engines was instantly given, but it was too late. The mischief was done, and for a time, at least, there was an end of this great international work. The result is very mortifying, when we reflect upon how much remained to be done to the measures of precaution should, apparently, have insured the success of the undertaking. Most assuredly this particular form of accident will be effectually guarded against when the attempt is renewed, but it must be remembered that no simple precaution will guard against the many causes of accident which make all the more to be apprehended because they are as yet unapproached and unknown. Under these circumstances it becomes more important to consider if there be not some method of repairing the damage, no matter what may be its immediate cause. It certainly seems a very inappropriate arrangement to trust the success of so important an operation to the mere chance of paying out so enormous a length of cable so slight. No doubt mechanical science, even so, will come to our aid, and satisfactorily provide means for dropping the wire from shore to shore; but why have recourse to extraordinary measures when precautions of a far more simple nature would enable us effectually to repair any fracture which might take place? Among the many plans which have been suggested two seem to be recommended by their simplicity and apparent efficiency. First, it has been proposed that as the cable is paved out, it should be connected with a [illegible] of buoys of the most [illegible] kind, but which would be sufficient to keep afloat that portion of the cable which had been last paid out. Thus, if an accident occurred, the end of the cable could be recovered, it could be again connected with the coil, and thus the work might proceed. The second suggestion is even more simple than the first. It is recommended that a second vessel should attend, at a considerable distance astern, upon the ship which is absolutely engaged in laying down the cable; that the cable should be made to pass through a ring in connection with the second ship, and that thus there would be an opportunity for recovering the broken cable before it had sunk beyond all recall in the bottom of the sea. Practical engineers, and men accustomed to this kind of work, must, of course, be left to judge of the feasibility of these schemes; but it certainly will seem to laymen a sad sine upon the mechanical ingenuity of the nation, if no method can be devised for taking up a dropped stitch in the process of laying the electric cable.

The Directors, as we have been given to understand, have resolved to renew the attempt in October. That month is a favorable one for the purpose, and we really see no reason, if they profit by their recent experience, why they should not succeed in the second attempt. If during the few weeks which must elapse before the next experiment some can be devised for repairing any damage which may occur—that is, any means of recovering the end of the cable in case of accident, and of knitting it on again to the coil—we should at least look upon the work as done. The experience gained in the recent attempt has been highly satisfactory of the chance of ultimate and speedy success. Those points which had previously been stated to be the chief difficulties have turned out no difficulties at all. There was, in point of fact, been a [illegible] not a failure.

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE AVOIDANCE OF FUTURE MISHAPS.

A correspondent of the London Times writes:

In respect to the Atlantic telegraphic cable and the delay that has attended it, I with all deference beg to suggest the following plan of operations as the best calculated to effect the permanent laying of the entire length of the cable, viz.: Let the Agamemnon and Niagara proceed to the centre of the proposed line, each of these ships having one-fourth of the entire length; a third steamer having also a fourth of the cable on board, to be stationed at Valentia Bay; and a fourth steamer with the quarter assigned to her, at Newfoundland, and at a given time that may be agreed on the Agamemnon and Niagara to sink the cable in the centre, and to pay out the other each in opposite direct lines to a given distance, such distance being one fourth the distance of the given length for each ship; and the steamers from the respective shores to start at the same time, each with their portions to meet the centre ships at the given rendezvous; during the time of the several ships paying out their portions, the two centre ships to keep up constant telegraphic communication with each other, and the same to be observed by the other ships as they meet the steamers from the shores; the cable to be tested and still kept on board the centre ships, until the whole portion is found to be complete. In the event of either of the steamers arriving at the rendezvous before that which is appointed, to wait with the length of cable on board for still [illegible] the [illegible] of the length of cable on board for the object for which it was intended, in regard to material, dimensions and structure.

We consider it to be so eminently suited for laying in deep water that we cannot suggest any improvement in its form and construction, and do not recommend that any change whatever should be made in the manufacture of any future cable for crossing the Atlantic.

The outer covering being composed of strands of iron wire, instead of single wires, as in former cables, gives such flexibility to the rope as almost to prevent the possibility of kinks occurring in the paying out, if the cable is properly coiled, while the strength with an equal weight of metal is also increased.

In case of a broken wire passing into the paying-out machine no damage is done, while with the solid wire it sometimes unravels and occasions serious inconvenience.

The conducting wire being also formed of a strand of seven copper wires, the chance of continuity being lost in the circuit is reduced to a minimum from the improbability of any flaw or weakness occurring in more than one of the seven wires at the same place.

We are, gentlemen, yours faithfully,
CHARLES T. BRIGHT, Engineer to the Atlantic Telegraph Company.

TO THE DIRECTORS OF THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

LONDON, Friday, Aug. 21.

GENTLEMEN: We, the undersigned, have pleasure in reporting to you that every experiment we have made upon the cable, every test to which we have subjected it, both for its insulating and conducting power, has uniformly resulted in demonstrating the perfect fitness of the cable for its office.

The treble covering of gutta percha so entirely provides for the remote possibility of accidental flaw occurring in either of the first or second coat, that all risk of defective insulation is thus avoided.

Experiments made with a short length had previously proved that a hydraulic pressure of five tons to the square inch in no way injured the insulation, and in the highest degree confirmatory of this is the result of the trial recently made in the great ocean depths. The actual pressure which a depth of water exceeding two miles had exerted upon its strongest produced not the slightest injury to the insulation of the submerged portion of our cable; while the low temperature by which it was then surrounded, instead, as has been anticipated, a distinctly beneficial effect on the electrical condition of the gutta percha. For a cable of great length, necessarily limited to a single conductor, we cannot suggest, on electrical or other grounds, any improvement upon the form adopted by the company.

We are, Gentlemen, yours faithfully,
WILDMAN WHITEHOUSE, Electrician.
S. F. B. MORSE, Company's Electrician on board the United States frigate Niagara.
W. THOMSON, Prof. Natural Philosophy.

TO THE DIRECTORS OF THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH COMPANY.

GENTLEMEN: Having as we do most fully within ourselves in the discouragement produced by the recent check experienced in the first attempt to lay the cable across the Atlantic, we cannot nevertheless, as Americans, omit to leave in England some record of the many pleasing recollections and feelings which have been evoked by sojourning with our brethren on this side of the Atlantic.

To your Arms we would express our admiration of the alacrity of purpose and rectitude of intention with which you appear to us to be endowed.

Towards your Government, whose kindness and hospitality during our stay in England has been so unbounded and so cordial, as to win entirely the respects of ourselves and the officers under our superior commands, we entertain the earnest sentiments, and we would desire to convey to them our best acknowledgments.

We would especially also, and in the most hearty manner, make mention of the very high esteem and regard which the constant and agreeable intercourse we have had with Captain Walpwright, Hector, Commander Noddall, Lieutenant Dayman, and all the officers of Her Majesty's navy engaged in this service has caused us to feel for them, and the great respect we feel in contemplating their talent and ability, and the never-tiring energy they have severally displayed in forwarding the work we have engaged in. Their frank and cordial cooperation has been greatly instrumental in making the endeavor to establish an Atlantic telegraph (that which it really should be—a great international effort.

In respect to Lieutenant Dayman, it is due that in addition we should make special mention of the very great advantage that has been derived to the enterprise by the careful and admirable manner in which his labor of making the soundings and running the circle sailing line across the Atlantic has been performed.

We can only, in conclusion, express our most earnest and cordial hope that your great work, the perfect practicability of which (in spite of the temporary check you have experienced) is now fully established, will be completely successful whenever your next attempt is made.

We remain, gentlemen, your obedient servants,
JOSHUA R. SANDS,
Captain of the United States Frigate Susquehanna.
WILLIAM L. HUDSON,
Captain of the United States Frigate Niagara.

THE INDIAN REBELLION.

THE LATEST NEWS.

From the London Times, Aug. 24.

There is something almost whimsical in the operation of the electric telegraph combined with the sister agency of steam. They are always refusing to fit into one another. On the 14th—that is, last Friday week—the wire brought to Alexandria the chief heads of an Indian Mail, with news from Calcutta up to the first of July—that is, 17 days later than the previous dates reported. The dispatch was evidently confused as well as meagre. The Bentis, however, which was in the port of Alexandria, on the point of starting for Malta, could not or would not wait, and we are left possibly for a week to speculate on oracular sentences which may have a serious meaning, and may also have no meaning at all. Almost the only tangible points of the dispatch are the deaths of General Barnard and Sir H. Lawrence. No dates are given, but these two events seem to indicate news from Delhi and Lucknow later than the last, which were June 27 from the former and June 18 from the latter, with no decided improvement in our position at either of those places. As General Barnard had conducted the siege on the principle of not throwing away a chance, but waiting to do the thing with certainty, and as such a plan only requires the ordinary intelligence of an average British officer, with or without experience, the result of his death will only be to transfer the conduct of the siege from one General to another. Sir H. Lawrence has had to hold good his ground with a very small force in the midst of revolt, and has done so with energy and success. A sortie under such circumstances is a proof of enterprise, though the wisdom of it must depend upon circumstances not yet known. Sir H. Lawrence, however, had the reputation of a good Indian officer, and it may require some costly experience to train another to fill his place. As for Delhi, the news on this point will give no disappointment, as we have ceased to expect the capture of the city till the accumulation of a much larger force than is known to be there. Nor is it probable that anything decisive will be attempted until the arrival of Sir Colin Campbell, who must be at his post before this. The news from Cawnpore must be measured by the reference made to our previous information in the Bombay Times of the 14th. From that and other sources we have already learnt that Nana Sahib, the Mahratta chief of Bithoor, who occupied the neighborhood and the city of Cawnpore, with the exception of the fort, or intrenched position, held by Sir H. Wheeler, and who had been able to give some temporary annoyance to the fort with artillery, had massacred more than a hundred Europeans, men, women, and children, who had fallen into his clutches in their passage down the river. This sad piece of news is unanimously confirmed; but it is added that the villain has been driven from Cawnpore and followed up by General Havelock, to his own district, Bithoor. This is the only meaning that can be put on the brief notice of the electric dispatch, which supposes Cawnpore to be in the hands of Nana Sahib at the date of the massacre already reported, and therefore must mean by that name the open city, and not the military position occupied by Sir Hugh Wheeler.

Nor is this the only success ascribed to General Havelock, who appears to be able to move freely in the Doab of the Jumna and the Ganges, and who has obtained three victories over the rebels. As all this country is within reach of the reinforcements rapidly arriving up the Ganges, every such success is sure to be made good, and the country becomes the basis for operations elsewhere. The general statement that all Oude had mutinied is no addition to what we have been told already. The Gwalior Contingent also was in mutiny at the last date, and nothing is now added, except its rumored march on Indore. The object of this movement can only be a matter of speculation, but it certainly was not the boldest course open to the mutinous contingent, which could nowhere do us so much harm as by marching to Delhi, or molesting our communications with that place. With regard to the main issue of this struggle, they have gone out of the way for the present, though the direction they are said to have taken may reasonably add to our apprehensions for the borders of the Bombay Presidency. As to the conduct of Holkar and the Gwalior chief, and of their contingents, it is precisely what was to be expected. The chiefs profess loyalty, and are wholly unable so give us the only real proof by the loyalty of their men. To us it is an affair of minor importance whether the chiefs themselves stand by us or not. They may or may not be in earnest. If they are, then it is evident they possess not a shadow of authority, and the sooner they cease to encumber territories which they cannot control the better for the general good. If they are not in earnest—if their contingents know very well that their offence is not unpardonable, then these chiefs are only pursuing the common Indian policy of consulting appearances and personal safety as long as possible, though it be at the expense of truth.

Perhaps the most mysterious passage in the dispatch is that announcing the loss of the Transit in the Straits of Sunda, and the arrival of all the crew and troops at Suez on the 14th. The statement, if not impossible, is at least incredible. That the Transit should have been lost in those dangerous straits is likely enough, but the Nubia has not come from that part of the world, and, even if she had, could not have brought the contents of the Transit. So an evening contemporary is probably right in suggesting that the passage ought to be read, "the crew and troops all saved," with the words "Suez to-day" added as the date of the dispatch. Another possible suggestion is, that the crew and troops have arrived, that is, at their destination, notwithstanding the loss of the vessel. Some explanation will probably be given this evening. It is natural, however, to ask why the Transit should find herself in the Straits of Sunda, and why she was not stopped with the Himalaya and sent to Calcutta? As the Transit is no more, it is needless to revive the controversy as to her merits. Peace to her ashes. Her loss is a trifling affair compared with the horrors brought by every mail. Would that the loss of a hundred Transits could restore the victims of Hindoo and Mahomedan treachery and brutality! All that remains is to avenge them, and that we shall do, and we trust amply.

ASPECT OF AFFAIRS AT DELHI.

The columns of the London Times are filled with private letters from the various mutinous districts in India. The following extract of a letter, dated June 24, is from an officer in the besieging force before Delhi:

Still before the walls of this horrible city. We have had no reinforcements yet, beyond a few Sikhs belonging to the 4th Sikh Regiment; consequently we have been able to do nothing except hold our own. On the 19th they came out again, having received reinforcements which they immediately sent out to fight us. At the same time a very large force went out a long way and tried to get round into the rear of our camp. A large force of ours consequently went out to meet them, gentlemen, and a tremendous fight was the consequence. Our arrangements were very bad in this fight—the cavalry, infantry, and artillery all mixed up together in sad confusion; many of our men, I fear, killed by our side. The mutineers held a capital position, and their big guns did terrible execution, loaded as they were with grapeshot; unfortunately, too, owing closed in on the fight, and, instead of quietly retiring, so as to protect our camp, we were ordered to fight on, and the confusion became terrible; at last, however, the order came to retire; many of our guns were left on the ground till morning, as also our killed and wounded, but were hastily all safely brought back into camp next day. Our loss was nearly equal to the enemy's, that is, several officers killed and wounded, and about 300 men killed and wounded. Dayman (the gallant fellow, our Commander-in-Chief) was struck through the thigh, of our cavalry, too, we have lost many, through the leg and shoulder. Hodson, too, was struck through the leg and shoulder, but not very badly, he had a narrow escape, for the mutineers fought the moment again, and we had to fight the same plan as the evening before, but the lessons we had had made us wiser, and we marched out in regular order. The enemy, seeing this, immediately began to retire, and tried to draw us on into some broken ground. This, however, they did not succeed in, and, as they kept retiring from place to place, our Horse Artillery punished them a good deal. Seeing they could do us good that day they slowly retired, and we returned to camp. No loss on our side, since then. (the 20th.) We had a few skirmishes, nothing was attempted on either side, several days blowing up two bridges, which prevents the enemy's artillery from coming out, except by a long round of some three miles to the left and right, but yesterday (the 23d) we heard that every man in the city capable of bearing arms was coming out to make an end of us or die in the attempt. Our information was correct; at sunrise yesterday morning the whole city apparently turned out and attacked us on all sides. I was with the Guides on the right, and from sunrise to past sunset we fought almost prior to noon, without anything to eat and only water to drink. We managed to hold our own well, nevertheless, till about 1 o'clock, and killed an immense number of the mutineers; but at 1 o'clock an immense reinforcement came to the assistance of the opposite party, and we had enough to do to hold our own. I twice fired away every shot I had, nearly 100 rounds per man, and had sent back for more ammunition. The man I sent came back with the fearful news there was no more; to leave the position was contrary to all orders, so we had to do our best by pretending to fire, and keeping the post with the bayonet. All this time we were under a perfect hailstorm of bullets, round shot, and shell, for the enemy had brought some of their light field guns round, and were playing with great effect on our reduced numbers. I certainly thought that we should all be done for, when, by the greatest good luck, a part of the regiment of Sikhs that had that very morning marched into camp came up with a yell to our assistance; they were fresh men, and had lots of ammunition, so we rushed on and drove the enemy back. At the same time we were ordered to advance as far as we could; this we did, and drove the enemy back into the city, after which, as they did not seem inclined to come out again, we retired, it being past sunset. Just as this fine my leg, stout as they are, fairly, and for the first time, refused to carry me; after a little coaxing and a rest, however, they consented to carry me on a little further, and I reached our picket and dismounted. I certainly have was so fearfully and painfully tired in my life. Jones, second Sumsamma, who is doing the second in command's work in poor Battye's place, a great, big, and very powerfully built giant, was also so fearfully knocked up that he was obliged to be carried up; two of our poor men also were so fatigued that they died from exhaustion. Luckily, on arrival at picket, we found something to eat and drink. After a few mouthfuls, I fell back on my bed fast asleep. Luckily, see, there was no alarm or attack in the night, for I feel perfectly certain that had my commission depended on it I could not have got up. A good night's sleep has set me up wonderfully, and I feel quite jolly. The mutineers have been quiet to-day also; they lost fearfully yesterday. No more for to-day, or I shall be too late for the mail.

Another officer writing on the 24th of June, says:

We could now take the city in a few hours, if we liked. Our batteries are all erected, but it is thought prudent to wait for reinforcements. Spies have been sent into the city, and returned stating the besieged are beginning to suffer from hunger and the respectable natives are longing for British rule again. There are about 20,000 men (mutineers and deserters) inside the city. They make sorties every day, but are always repulsed with loss. In one they left 450 dead on the field.

In another letter of the same date the writer says:

The loss and destruction are something fearful; they have broken the locks on the river, torn up all the roads and bridges, burnt every house they could at Delhi, destroyed all the monuments in the burial-ground. At Meerut they lighted fires under the General's tables, to turn the things quicker. It is said he has lost 50,000 rupees' worth of property.

RUSSIAN VIEW OF THE INDIAN MUTINIES.

Madras (July 10) Correspondence of Le Nord.

India at the present moment, from Cape Comorin to the foot of the Himalayas, is the theatre of the most horrible crimes and atrocities—officers murdered by their soldiers, women violated and cut in pieces, and children roasted alive before their parents' eyes.

Such are the scenes now witnessed in India, that fine country where, nevertheless, for a century, the English have established their rule and laws.

This state of things has roused the East India Company's Government from its habitual apathy. The public press has taken hold of the question, and numerous pamphlets have been published, to point out the evil, its causes, and the remedies to be employed.

As it was the army which first gave the example of revolt and crime, it is on its organization that public attention was first directed, and all the organs of the press coincide in discovering the evil.

1. In priority admitted as the only claim to promotion.

2. In the little talent and military taste of the officers of the Indian army.

3. In the total want of sympathy between them and their men.

4. In this faulty organization of the military Government placed under the control of the civil service.

The native army, consisting of 18 regiments of 1,000 men each, tolerated, patiently, but also contemptuously, its English officers, and from the statement of its commanding officer, who really took an interest in its organization, it was a secret enemy of the Indian Government.

A great General often observed that he feared the Sepoys more than an enemy on the frontier.

The army, which consists exclusively of Hindoos and Mussulmans, to whom the use of pork fat is expressly forbidden by their religion, made a pretext of greased cartridges given to them with a new description of musket, and they rose as one man at every military station. The soldiers first refused obedience; they then fired on their officers on parade, and then deserted their colors and their profession for ever.

The Government at first tried to persuade itself that it was only an accidental mutiny in two or three discontented regiments, and the Governor-General issued a proclamation to reassure the troops that other cartridges would be given them, and that the Government would never interfere with their religion. The troops received the proclamation with a very bad grace, and a few hours after it had been officially read some regiments fired on their officers, burned their stations, and put to death all Europeans they met with, without regard to sex or age.

The so called mutiny assumed the proportions of a serious revolution, fomented throughout the whole of India by all the dethroned Kings and deposed Mussulman Princes.

What is the cause of this revolution? Is it to be attributed to the greased cartridges, or solely to discontent among the Sepoys?

No, it is to be attributed,—

1. To the policy of annexation, followed for many years by the representatives of the East India Company.

2. To the unjust treatment of the women and heirs of the deposed crowned heads.

3. To the breach of faith on the part of the Government towards the sepoys on two different occasions.

4. To the humiliation of Europeans in favor of a few privileged classes of natives and Mussulmans, which the Government wished to flatter to obtain loans from them.

5. To the tendency to seize hold of the fortunes of Rajahs and millionaire nabobs.

6. To a false application of what the Government pleased itself to style philanthropy.

7. To the licentiousness of the native press.

Let us now examine each of these causes:

1. The Government of the East India Company has annexed, without any reason, and most unjustly, the kingdom of Oude to its territory. This false and clumsy policy aroused the indignation of the whole of that rich and populous country, and the Sepoys, who belong chiefly to Oude and the neighboring countries, took up arms for the cause of their Kings.

A great number of other deposed princes and princesses are actually receiving pensions from the Company; but, as it always endeavors to find means to reduce its expenditure by pretending that the women and heirs are not legitimate, it has created a general common feeling of discontent among them, which has made them the sworn enemies of the Government, and actual events have proved that those kings and princes are at the head of a portion of the conspiracy which has broken out. The Government has taken advantage of this to shut up the King of Oude and his Prime Ministers as prisoners in the fort at Calcutta; it will act likewise towards many other princes now receiving pensions, and will thus save many lacs of rupees.

2. A law has been prepared, and is, it is said, on the eve of being passed, to prevent Rajahs and other Indian millionaires leaving their property to indirect heirs; thus, the possessor of only 1,000 rupees may leave them to his nephews and nieces, but any one possessing ten lacs or more can only leave them to the Hon. East India Company.

This law, if we are to believe the natives, was framed with a view to the eventual death of certain Rajahs who have no legitimate children, especially to that of the Rajah of Burdwan, who possesses millions. This measure, it appears, in no manner pleased him, for he is one of the individuals compromised in the present movement. As regards the women, rightly or wrongly, public rumor prevails that the Government put them to death to avoid paying their pensions. A journal, speaking of the rents of Marpoore, said last year that they had been sent to a pestilential residence that the payment might stop.

3. The Government broke its word towards the army. It had, in fact, promised to the men that they should not cross the sea. Now, in the Burmese war it ordered four regiment to embark. The first order was disobeyed. The troops had right on their side, yet they were decimated and fired upon by English cannon. At the time of the Sikh war the army refused, at a critical and decisive moment, to cross the Sutlej without a batta. The Generals were obliged to give in, and a batta was granted. When Oude was annexed, the Government, then in strength, declared that the batta should cease to be paid. These facts, added to the discontent caused by the greased cartridges, brought about, with the aid of the Rajahs and of the Kings, the present revolution in India.

4. The Company's Government, despite its horrible resources, has always gone beyond its means, and consequently been constantly in pecuniary difficulties. It was from our loss was nearly equal to the enemy's that [illegible] several officers were killed and wounded, and the latter our Commander-in-Chief, Dayman, was struck through the thigh, of our cavalry, too, we have lost many, of our [illegible] through the leg and shoulder. Madras (July 10) Correspondence of Le Nord.

India at the present moment, from Cape Comorin to the foot of the Himalayas, is the theatre of the most horrible crimes and atrocities—officers murdered by their soldiers, women violated and cut in pieces, and children roasted alive before their parents' eyes.

Such are the scenes now witnessed in India, that fine country where, nevertheless, for a century, the English have established their rule and laws.

This state of things has roused the East India Company's Government from its habitual apathy. The public press has taken hold of the question, and numerous pamphlets have been published, to point out the evil, its causes, and the remedies to be employed.

As it was the army which first gave the example of revolt and crime, it is on its organization that public attention was first directed, and all the organs of the press coincide in discovering the evil.

1. In priority admitted as the only claim to promotion.

2. In the little talent and military taste of the officers of the Indian army.

3. In the total want of sympathy between them and their men.

4. In this faulty organization of the military Government placed under the control of the civil service.

The native army, consisting of 18 regiments of 1,000 men each, tolerated, patiently, but also contemptuously, its English officers, and from the statement of its commanding officer, she really took an interest in its organization, it was a secret enemy of the Indian Government.

A great General often observed that he feared the Sepoys more than an enemy on the frontier.

The army, which consists exclusively of Hindoos and Mussulmans, to whom the use of pork fat is expressly forbidden by their religion, made a pretext of greased cartridges given to them with a new description of musket, and they rose as one man at every military station. The soldiers first refused obedience; they then fired on their officers on parade, and then deserted their colors and their profession for ever.

The Government at first tried to persuade itself that it was only an accidental mutiny in two or three discontented regiments, and the Governor-General issued a proclamation to reassure the troops that other cartridges would be given them, and that the Government would never interfere with their religion. The troops received the proclamation with a very bad grace, and a few hours after it had been officially read some regiments fired on their officers, burned their stations, and put to death all Europeans they met with, without regard to sex or age.

The so called mutiny assumed the proportions of a serious revolution, fomented throughout the whole of India by all the dethroned Kings and deposed Mussulman Princes.

What is the cause of this revolution? Is it to be attributed to the greased cartridges, or solely to discontent among the Sepoys?

No, it is to be attributed,—

1. To the policy of annexation, followed for many years by the representatives of the East India Company.

2. To the unjust treatment of the women and heirs of the deposed crowned heads.

3. To the breach of faith on the part of the Government towards the sepoys on two different occasions.

4. To the humiliation of Europeans in favor of a few privileged classes of natives and Mussulmans, which the Government wished to flatter to obtain loans from them.

5. To the tendency to seize hold of the fortunes of Rajahs and millionaire nabobs.

6. To a false application of what the Government pleased itself to style philanthropy.

7. To the licentiousness of the native press.

Let us now examine each of these causes:

1. The Government of the East India Company has annexed, without any reason, and most unjustly, the kingdom of Oude to its territory. This false and clumsy policy aroused the indignation of the whole of that rich and populous country, and the Sepoys, who belong chiefly to Oude and the neighboring countries, took up arms for the cause of their Kings.

A great number of other deposed princes and princesses are actually receiving pensions from the Company; but, as it always endeavors to find means to reduce its expenditure by pretending that the women and heirs are not legitimate, it has created a general common feeling of discontent among them, which has made them the sworn enemies of the Government, and actual events have proved that those kings and princes are at the head of a portion of the conspiracy which has broken out. The Government has taken advantage of this to shut up the King of Oude and his Prime Ministers as prisoners in the fort at Calcutta; it will act likewise towards many other princes now receiving pensions, and will thus save many lacs of rupees.

2. A law has been prepared, and is, it is said, on the eve of being passed, to prevent Rajahs and other Indian millionaires leaving their property to indirect heirs; thus, the possessor of only 1,000 rupees may leave them to his nephews and nieces, but any one possessing ten lacs or more can only leave them to the Hon. East India Company.

This law, if we are to believe the natives, was framed with a view to the eventual death of certain Rajahs who have no legitimate children, especially to that of the Rajah of Burdwan, who possesses millions. This measure, it appears, in no manner pleased him, for he is one of the individuals compromised in the present movement. As regards the women, rightly or wrongly, public rumor prevails that the Government put them to death to avoid paying their pensions. A journal, speaking of the rents of Marpoore, said last year that they had been sent to a pestilential residence that the payment might stop.

3. The Government broke its word towards the army. It had, in fact, promised to the men that they should not cross the sea. Now, in the Burmese war it ordered four regiment to embark. The first order was disobeyed. The troops had right on their side, yet they were decimated and fired upon by English cannon. At the time of the Sikh war the army refused, at a critical and decisive moment, to cross the Sutlej without a batta. The Generals were obliged to give in, and a batta was granted. When Oude was annexed, the Government, then in strength, declared that the batta should cease to be paid. These facts, added to the discontent caused by the greased cartridges, brought about, with the aid of the Rajahs and of the Kings, the present revolution in India.

4. The Company's Government, despite its horrible resources, has always gone beyond its means, and

COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

THE LIVERPOOL MARKETS.

From the London Times, (City article,) Aug. 24.

The failure announced yesterday from Liverpool show that the statements on the subject detailed last week in various journals [illegible] aggregation, although, owing apparently to the efforts made by the parties [illegible] to suppress inquiry, they involve some errors of detail. The stoppage of Messrs. Bunneman, Brown & Co., mentioned [illegible] with liabilities reported at [illegible], is [illegible] have been caused by that of Mr. Davies, the cheese factor, who had his [illegible] Bunneman, Brown & Co. [illegible] brokers with an excellent business, and their losses are thought to be attributable to share speculations, with regard to the liabilities of Mr. J. H. Hayes, who has suspended in the corn [illegible] seems to have transpired. The [illegible] by the merchant who is alleged to have [illegible] and who is a member of a most respectable family, now variously stated at from £50,000 to £100,000, seems a peculiarity of some portions of the Liverpool community that they always [illegible] statements with regard to the [illegible] of any members of their body which shows a greater [illegible] the reckless speculations [illegible] Although it is of the utmost importance to the straightforward conduct of business that all instances of the abuse of credit should be exposed, care [illegible] to them is immediately [illegible] drawer to make mischief. The most extraordinary illustration of this tendency was in the notorious case of Mr. Gurney, where some of the leading merchants of the town allowed their [illegible] to a notice on 'Change, denouncing the publication of their credit [illegible] they must have had reason to believe of his [illegible] roughly true; [illegible] in which the same system has not been to some extent pursued. Accordingly during the past week complaints have been [illegible] paragraphs having appeared in the London [illegible] calculated to lead the public to suppose that there has been in any quarter a difficulty worth mentioning. Every one should, of course, be cautious to check vague alarms, and to keep back all private information that might possibly interfere with [illegible] efforts to prevent an extension of [illegible] to cancel or to give a false color to facts that have already occurred is not the best method of proceeding that end.

From the Liverpool Post, Aug. 22.

The absence of stirring news of [illegible] was badly compensated for all yesterday by life and animation in 'Change, which, if [illegible] became apparent as the [illegible] town. According to these [illegible] were involved in a commercial crisis; and, if the reckonings of American [illegible] to be [illegible] and safe. The reports were not the less [illegible] because those who reported did not believe them; and, although the public [illegible] and authoritatively [illegible] confirmed, indifferent [illegible] the last week the London papers have made in no [illegible] generalizing the entire [illegible] against the [illegible] of [illegible] flying things of no moment into serious [illegible] putting down thousands where hundreds [illegible] have been exaggerations, and [illegible] where all was honesty. People on the [illegible] naturally indignant at these assaults

[illegible]

A general meeting of the Merchants' Exchange & Commercial Association, Philadelphia, was held on Friday, when a [illegible] sheet was submitted by Mr. CHAPMAN, the [illegible], showing the concerted drive to amount [illegible] of 20 cts. It appears that a dividend of about 50c. in the pound will be paid. The immediate cause of the embarrassment is said to have been from losses [illegible] principally from an alteration in the tariff on goods shipped to the United States. It was received [illegible] of which [illegible] and Messrs. OSBORN and [illegible] were appointed trustees.

Liverpool Markets.

Per Europa: LIVERPOOL, Tuesday, Aug. 25, 1857.

The weather continues most favorable for harvest operations, and with liberal receipts into London Mark [illegible] yesterday was quoted 3d.@4s. 3 quarter lower for English, and 2s. on Foreign, with but a limited [illegible] At to-day's Market there was but a moderate [illegible] the sales of WHEAT were made at a decline of 6d. 3 bushel on the nominal quotations. Prices are still [illegible] WHEAT; the best qualities for [illegible] varies so recently, but other [illegible] partook of the decline on Red. FLOUR, 6s.@ [illegible] lower, without leading to business. Indian Corn, Dragging sale, and 6d. 3 quarter lower, at Mx. @ 32s. 6d. for Mediterranean. We quote WHEAT: Red, 8s.@9s. 6d.; White, 8s.@9s. 3d. 3 70 lbs. FLOUR [illegible] Philadelphia and Baltimore, 30s.@34s.; Ohio, 32s.@36s. 6d. 3 barrel; Indian Corn, Yellow and Mixed, 36s.@36s. 6d.; White [illegible] Rye and Peas—Scarcely any [illegible] Indian Meal is offered at a decline of [illegible] 3 barrel, without leading to business. [illegible] is made for prime in retail, salers of [illegible] without buyers. PARLOW—Prices discouraging. Producers' Association, nominally 63s.@65s. [illegible] Hides—Dull and easier. Corn—Middling and lower qualities are one eighth dearer than Friday. Good useful Cotton with steady demand and fully supported for most days; the [illegible] commands full rates. "Middling" Orleans, 6 1/16d.; Mobile, 6 3/4d.; Uplands, 6 1-16d.

RICHARDSON, SPENCE & CO.

FIRE AND LOSS OF LIFE IN FALL RIVER, MASS.—We learn from Capt. DURFEE, of the steamer Bradford [illegible] that a fire broke out at an early hour yesterday morning in the Pocasset Block, a large brick building on Bedford-street, near the market house, and before the flames could be extinguished, the inside was pretty nearly destroyed. A man named HERRICK [illegible] was so badly injured by falling rubbish, that he died soon after. The buildings were owned by Mayor [illegible], and the occupants were R. S. Gates, clothing [illegible]; Geo. M. Bosworth, auctioneer; Mrs. Pool, and Miss Ross, milliners; J. C. Blaisdell and Benson [illegible], lawyers, who all experienced more or less damage by fire and water. A Mason Lodge occupied a hall in the building. Loss about $16,000, which is partially covered by insurance.—Providence Post.

STOPPING THE MILLS.—We learn, from good authority, that the Hamilton and Appleton Corporations have decided to run their mills only five days in the week for the present, shutting down the gates on Friday night—to remain down until Monday morning. This is in consequence of the high price of cotton and the accumulation of manufactured goods already on hand. It is believed that this depression in business will be felt less seriously by the operatives under the proposed arrangement than by any other plan that could be adopted.—Lowell Voz Populi.

ARREST EXTRA.—A prominent and well-known [illegible] citizen was yesterday arrested on requisition from Gov. KING, of the State of New York, and was placed in the jail. We repress the name and details till it more fully appears that he merits their publication.—St. Louis Democrat, Sept. 1.

MARKET REPORTS.

[illegible] reporting reporters for the N. Y. Daily Tribune.

NEW-YORK, Monday, Sept. 7, 1857—6 P. M.

COFFEE—Is inactive, yet quoted steady. Java, [illegible]; Laguayra, 12c.@12¼c.; Jamaica, 12½c.@[illegible]; Barcelos, 10¾c.@11¼c.; Rio, 10¾c.@[illegible]; St. Domingo, 11¼c.@12c.; Native Ceylon, [illegible] 3 lb.

COTTON—The market displays no important alteration. The demand is limited; prices are supported.

NEW-YORK CLEARINGS FOR 1857.

	Friday.	Saturday.	Monday.	Tuesday.
Cotton	12¾	12¾	12¾	12¾
Middling	12¼	12¼	12¼	12
Middling Fair	12¾	12¾	12	11
Good Ordinary	12¼	12¼	Dom.	Dom.

FLOUR AND MEAL—The market is very heavy and prices are quite irregular for State and Western Flour, with more sellers than buyers. The home trade purchase with much reserve, and shippers are passive. Sales: 4,000 barrels within our reduced range, the lowest figures of which are now more acceptable to buyers. The receipts are moderate, but receivers are eager to realize.

Common State	$5 25@$5 40
Middling State	5 40@ 5 50
Superfine Indiana and Michigan	5 25@ 5 40
Superfine Ohio	5 40@ 5 60

MUNICIPAL.

Board of Aldermen.

[illegible] of the City of New-York, CORNELIUS W. LAWRENCE, President, presiding.

President CLANCY took the Chair at 3½ o'clock, P. M.

Petitions from A. B. Van Olinda and G. V. Ollickner for refunds were presented by Alderman CLANCY for payment of their respective personal taxes, and referred to the Committee on Taxes.

The following petition was presented by Alderman [illegible]:

To the Honorable the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the City of New-York:

[illegible] Your petitioner respectfully represents [illegible] the American and Democratic aims House Government [illegible] the judicial appropriations, to [illegible] the Tribune, Evening Post, and [illegible] against their own extravagant [illegible] that the American and Democratic Commissioners also vote bewildering sums to [illegible], from their six hundred thousand [illegible] to silence the philippics of the Republican [illegible], against their own extravagant appropriations, while these Republican editors follow [illegible] and every thief about Joseph Walter, Sanderson, and Lawler, the Governors and Board Commissioners, [illegible] appropriated nearly two millions of dollars per annum, without a growl from these Republican editors, that Governor WM. F. [illegible] told you that the people have every item of [illegible] in the Board of Supervisors, as [illegible] Governors, as [illegible] seldom correctly reported in the [illegible] Tribune, that the Supervisors of the City [illegible] twenty one hundred and twelve [illegible] 1856, [illegible] and children half price, [illegible] the Governor [illegible] Governor Fernando Wood's request, I passed the Governor to give me $1,000 to a burlesque [illegible] petition for $1,000 to print his book [illegible] Republic"—that Governor FERNANDO promised to [illegible] petition on Dr. Gunger to the [illegible] Governor FERNANDO's most extraordinary conduct [illegible] to suspect that he has twenty and one and a [illegible] of the press, to secure the guilty and [illegible] Governors to help Mint grind some very [illegible] hatchets and saws—that in view of his serious [illegible] against his brethren, and the general belief that there is great prodigality and corruption among the Governors, and disgusting scenes of [illegible] and gluttony at their Blackwell's Island and Bedford asylum, I respectfully request, (in the name of Sleeman, Gunther, Webb, Bryant, and Draper, and other virtuous citizens,) that His Honor, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Commonalty of the City of New-York, will petition the Legislature to reorganize the Board of Non-Governors on the basis of integrity. And your petitioner will ever pray.

STEPHEN H. BRANCH.

On motion of Alderman FURMAN it was entered on the minutes and ordered to be printed.

The report of the Committee on the Fire Department in favor of directing the Street Commissioner to repair Engine Company No. 1 was read.

Alderman TUCKER wanted to know which Street Commissioner was referred to—Genover or Devlin. If the report were adopted in that shape both would go on to repair the engine. Each claimed to be Street Commissioner.

Alderman COURTNEY stated that Devlin's name had been inserted in the report.

The President stated that the Mayor had decided that in such cases the name of the office and not that of the incumbent was to be mentioned. The report was laid on the table.

The report of the Joint Special Committee on General Jackson's gold box was read. The Clerk then commenced to read a remonstrance against the award of the Committee, signed by 68 of the surviving members of the 1st Regiment of New-York Volunteers, expressing their opinion that General Ward B. Burnett was entitled to receive the box, and promising to prove to the Committee that General Burnett deserved the honor, if they would reconsider their action.

Alderman WILSON hoped the document would not be read; it was insulting the Board to send in such a paper.

Alderman TUCKER wanted to know how he knew that the paper had not been read.

Alderman WILSON knew all about it; it was an insult to the Board. He moved that it be laid on the table. The motion was lost and the remonstrance was then read. This document, after examining each of the specifications upon which the claims of Major Dyckman to the box were founded, and comparing the services of that officer with that of General Burnett, concludes by petitioning the Common Council to give them an opportunity of satisfying them that the award should have been made to the latter officer.

Alderman TUCKER moved that the report be recommitted. There was certainly a great deal of discrepancy between the report and the statement of the signers of the remonstrance. The Committee had [illegible] one of the resolutions appointing them, by which they were directed to request the regiment to assemble, and decide upon the individual whom they believed to be entitled to the box. They had done so—the regiment were in favor of Ward B. Burnett.

Alderman HOGAN said the paper was a lie upon the face of it. The Committee had adjourned from day to day almost at the request of these men, to give them a chance to bring testimony. The Committee found great difficulty in making the award. At last they heard something of Dyckman's merits, and asked him why he did not apply for it. He said he was too poor, others who had means and influence would carry it off. The Committee promised that he should have an equal chance with the richest. The award was made to him. The Committee had acted with perfect impartiality.

Alderman FURMAN fully indorsed what the preceding speaker said. Each of the Committee had formed his judgment without consultation with his colleagues. An informal ballot was taken and then a formal ballot, and there were seven votes out of ten for Major Dyckman. The man who said there was collusion on the part of the Committee, was a blackguard and a liar. He (Mr. F.) was ready to recognize the Board of Non-Governors on the basis of integrity. And your petitioner will ever pray.

INSTRUCTION.

THE CHEVALIER INSTITUTE, CORNER OF 4TH-AVENUE and 18th-st., opens on Monday, Sept. 7, with the services of the same corps of teachers as last year. Its system of instruction has been found to be the most thorough and complete of any in the country, for the last three years his partner and formerly Rector of the Henry-st. Grammar School. An assistant of the most experienced and efficient teachers has been engaged. Pupils are received at all ages, and well prepared for college or for commercial life. Reference is made to the Board of Columbia College, Rev. Drs. Alexander, Eigenbrodt, Forbes, Hutton, Knox and Manseius; and particularly to the numerous gentlemen, whose sons attend the school: Rev. Dr. A. Spencer, Rev. Chas. K. Hoffman, Cleveland, City; Rev. A. K. Isaacs, Dr. E. H. Van Winkle, Dr. Abram Van Clevens, Newark; Prof. Beckwith, Rev. Wm. Ludlow. Letters may be seen at the school from prominent merchants and others, whose sons have been educated by this Rector: "There is room here only for one or two more." Dr. Parris, Chancellor of the New-York University, says of Mr. C. P. Cornelius, "as an assistant teacher of youth, I am well acquainted with him several years, and made most gratifying progress." Rev. E. H. Isaacs concludes, "In the Chevalier I provide my interest daily children in Yes, with the assurance that as far as it may be done by conscientious and faithful effort, they will be made true, intelligent, and refined men."

Circulars containing the names of numerous references, besides the above, and full particulars as to discipline, course, &c., may be had at the school, which all who have the interest of their children at heart are invited to visit.

DANCING.

A. DODWORTH'S DANCING ACADEMIES, No. 806 Broadway, New-York, No. 127 Montague-place, Brooklyn.

Classes will commence First Week in October, or immediately after Mr. DODWORTH'S return from Europe.

Mr. DODWORTH would take occasion to say that he has long felt the necessity of introducing a system of instruction for the use of the young people by which the exercise of Dancing would be of more benefit physically, and more useful in the development of graceful movement, than it has been of late years. The facility with which the Polka and similar dances of the present time are acquired has induced many to neglect those exercises that were formerly indispensable. To that neglect, as one of the causes, may be attributed the appearance of so many round-shouldered young misses in the present generation. They are sent to school, and allowed to stoop over their desks without intermediate exercise, until the growing frame assumes the position in which it has so long been restrained; they are then sent to a teacher of dancing, with the expectation that by learning the Polka, Schottisch and a few other dances all this would be remedied, and they would at once become graceful women. Surely these things should be better understood. Were children sent to dancing early in life, at intervals during their necessary studies, and the teacher allowed to exercise them in such a manner and in such dances, in addition to the fashionable ones, as would add grace to the figure, walk and every movement, then something would be taken from the 19th Century a true check of this valuable accomplishment. Anxious to restore the art to its former usefulness, Mr. Dodworth instructed his classes in that acknowledged graceful study, the Minuet de la Cour, and other dances of similar usefulness. The evident success of this course in its effect upon the pupils encouraged him to give more attention to Dancing as connected with Calisthenics; and, during his present tour through Germany, France and Great Britain, he will see his business to call upon the most prominent teachers, and consult with them in regard to the best methods of accomplishing these desirable results. He hopes, therefore, to gain such information as will, in addition to his own experience, enable him to present to his patrons system that will not only make them dance the Polka, but will improve their health, figure and walk, and, in fact, have a salutary effect upon every movement in life.

DANCING.—BROOKES' ACADEMY, No. 363 Broome-st., will open for the season THIS DAY, Sept. 8. Ladies' class from 2 till 4 P. M. Gentlemen's class from 7½ till 10½. Children meet on Wednesday. All the fashionable dances taught in one course of lessons.

NOTICE.—NEW-YORK, SEPT. 4, 1857.—AT A meeting of the holders of the floating debt of the Great Western Railroad Company, (Illinois,) held at the office of the Company, on the 1st inst., Messrs. GOVERNEUR MORRIS and E. K. EDWARD were appointed a committee to confer with a committee to be appointed on the part of the Bondholders, for the purpose of arriving at some plan to relieve the road from its embarrassments. At a meeting of Bondholders, held this day, at which a large portion of the bonds were represented, a committee was appointed consisting of E. T. H. GIBSON, EDWARD BEMENT and J. N. A. GRISWOLD.
All holders of the First Mortgage Bonds of the road, and all holders of the Floating Debt, are requested to send in their names, the number of bonds and amount of claims, to E. T. H. GIBSON, No. 54 William-st., New-York, that all may be notified of the next meeting of Bondholders.
GOVERNEUR MORRIS, MORRIS K. JESUP, EDWARD BEMENT, E. T. H. GIBSON, J. N. A. GRISWOLD, } Committee.

THE UNDERSIGNED, TRUSTEES OF THE Second Mortgage of the Northern Cross Railroad Company, hereby give notice that they have drawn by lot the following numbers of Second Mortgage 8 per cent. Convertible Bonds of said Company, viz.: 68, 104, 110, 123, 137, 154,

NEW-YORK CITY.

A New Counterfeiter—Begun with on the Hudson County Bank—Two Scoundrels Arrested.

Last evening about 6 o'clock, Deputy Superintendent GARDINIER was notified that a large gang of counterfeiters would attempt to pass counterfeit three dollar bills of the Hudson County Bank, Jersey City, during the evening. He sent word to all the Inspectors in the various Precincts and ordered them to notify the patrolmen. A woman, who gave her name as MARY DEWENNE, was arrested by officers MYERS and SMITH, of the Tenth Precinct, while attempting to pass one of these bills at the grocery store No. 9 Bayard-street, about 7 o'clock in the evening. When she found she was detected she attempted to run away, but was caught by the officers and taken to the Station-house. She had other bills of the same kind about her person which she attempted to tear up after she was arrested. The officers were prevented her from doing so. She said she lived at No. 57 Eldridge-street. The officers went there with her and searched the house. They found nine bills there which they took possession of.

She had a little boy with her who, she said, was her son. His name was PETER DOWENNE. The bill purports to be of the Hudson County Bank, of the denomination of $3, payable to bearer, dated Sept. 1, 1856. The vignette is a train of cars. On the right a ship in full sail. On the two upper corners the word Three is printed; on the lower corners the figure 3. Across the face the word Three is written in red letters, as T. SMITH, Cashier, JOHN GURNEE, President. The engraving purports to be executed by DARROWS, Underwood & Co. The bills are carefully finished and well calculated to deceive an ordinary man. The following counterfeiters were arrested during the evening: JOHN FOX, in the Fifth Ward, arrested at 8½ P. M., at No. 114 Hudson-street.

Charles Green and James Williams, in the Twenty-First Ward, about 11 o'clock. Thomas Harrison, Charles Gerry, James Smith, William Miller and Hugh McCabe, at 11½ P. M. in the Fifteenth Ward.

The Lawlor Claim.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.—Sept. 7.

Before Hon. Justice Peabody.

Robert W. Lowlor vs. The Mayor, &c., of New-York.—This case was again brought up yesterday morning in pursuance of the order of Judge PEABODY, granted on the 19th of August, to show cause why the judgment and execution should not be set aside, and the defendants be let in to a further defense. O. L. Barney, Esq., claimed to bring the case on immediately, but on account of some previous business before the Court, the case was adjourned until Wednesday next at 11 o'clock.

The Devlin, Street Commissioner case, which was set down for yesterday, was formally opened by Mr. Stokes, but the main argument postponed until to-day.

The St. Nicholas Defalcation.

Trenchard vs. Jas. M. Lawlor.—This was a motion made to set aside the attachment against the defendant, on the ground that the affidavit on which the attachment was issued was insufficient. Mr. Graham, for the defendant, claimed that the affidavit depended entirely upon the admission of Lawlor. The affidavit contained the remarkable fact that the defendant admitted that his mother was the guilty recipient of the funds. Mr. Graham thought that it was, under any state of circumstances, impossible that the defendant could be made to admit such a fact, and he thought that this part of the affidavit should be disregarded.

The case was submitted, but no decision rendered.

The New Croton Reservoir.

AN ORDER TO SHOW CAUSE WHY A MANDAMUS SHOULD NOT ISSUE AGAINST THE CROTON BOARD.

The People ex rel. Dinsmore & Wood vs. The Croton Water Board.—It will be recollected that the Board refused to entertain the bid of Messrs. Dinsmore & Wood for constructing the new Croton Reservoir, on account of some alleged informality in their paper, although the bid was some fifty thousand dollars lower for the City than any other.

Upon application of Abbott Brothers, Counsel for Messrs. Dinsmore & Wood, Judge PEABODY yesterday morning granted an order to show cause why a mandamus should not issue commanding the Board to entertain their bid. It is returnable on Thursday morning.

The Paige Habeas Corpus.

At Chambers—Before Recorder Smith.

There was a numerous attendance of Liquor dealers and others at the Recorder's Office yesterday, to hear the arguments on the writ of habeas corpus in the case of David S. Paige, Secretary of the Liquor Dealers' Society, who claims to be unjustly restrained of his liberty on an indictment found against him in the Court of General Sessions, for alleged infringement of the Excise Law.

Mr. Theodore Tomlinson, who is associated with Mr. H. B. Taylor, as counsel for the liquor dealers, commenced the proceedings by reading the traverse to the return on the writ of habeas corpus, as follows:

The People, &c., vs. David S. Paige.—The defendant, by his attorney, traverses and denies the return, and the matters in law therein contained, and further alleges that the indictment is sufficient cause for his detention and imprisonment, and denies that the indictment is in the custody of the District-Attorney, by the rules of the Court of General Sessions; and the defendant further alleges that the indictment is void on its face, in this, that it does not charge or describe against the defendant any offence; and the defendant further alleges that the indictment has been obtained surreptitiously, and against the provisions of the Code, entitled "An act to suppress intemperance, and to regulate the sale of intoxicating liquors," passed April 16, 1857; and the defendant further alleges that no complaint was made against him by any magistrate, and that he was not arrested or brought before any magistrate charged with the violation of any of the sections of the aforesaid act, as required by the 16th section thereof—and defendant alleges that he has had no opportunity to elect to be tried before a magistrate as provided by the 16th section of said act; and defendant further alleges that in violation of the provisions of said act he has been illegally arrested and deprived of his liberty without notice, and without opportunity to give the bail of $100, as provided by the 16th section of said act, but has been required to give bail in the sum of $200, contrary to the provisions of said act.

D. B. TAYLOR, Att'y. for deft.

City and County of New-York, ss.—D. B. Paige, the defendant, being duly sworn, says that the facts set forth in the foregoing answer are true to the best of his knowledge and belief.

D. B. PAIGE.

Sworn before me, Monday, Sept. 7, 1857.

WM. G. MCGOVERNEY, Commissioner of Deeds.

The District-Attorney demurred to the traverse on the ground that there were no facts set forth therein which would warrant the discharge of the prisoner, and removed his motion (made on Saturday) to have the writ discharged, without going into any other matter than that of bail.

The Recorder remarked that, supposing the position taken by the District-Attorney to be correct, the indictment could not be interfered with collaterally on certiorari, or upon the question of habeas corpus; it clearly seemed to him to be the duty of the officer, where the party was deprived of his liberty, to investigate and ascertain the circumstances and the offence with which he was charged; and, if upon investigation the officer should come to the conclusion that, notwithstanding an indictment had been found, there was no offence committed, that would be a question for his consideration before he came to the consideration of the amount of bail. The traverse alleged that the indictment upon its face charged no offence; and that certain requirements of the law had not been complied with before this indictment was found. If these allegations were true it would not be right for the officer to discharge the writ without hearing the argument. He argued, however, with the District-Attorney, that nothing could be done affecting the indictment as a record of the Court of General Sessions, because if indictments were interfered with in that way they might be discharged at Chambers.

Mr. Hall—We have the authority of Chief Justice Brennan, that an indictment is a record importing absolute verity upon its face, both in law and fact.

Mr. Tomlinson—Assuming the indictment to be true, it proves that no offence has been committed. The question of the law are that the accused shall be taken before a committing magistrate, and bail shall be fixed in $100.

Recorder—The District Attorney admits those facts of the law.

Mr. Tomlinson—I agree with the District Attorney in the law on this case. But the law specifies a certain mode of procedure which we shall show has not been complied with. We hold, therefore, it is your Honor's duty to discharge the prisoner.

Recorder—I will hear the case on its merits.

Mr. Hall remarked that, in the Court of Sessions that very morning, various indictments like the one under consideration were presented for trial, but were adjourned, and counsel had stated that on Saturday next they would move to quash them upon the same grounds as set forth in the traverse. He would ask an adjournment of this habeas corpus till that time, as precisely the same arguments would be made as will be made before City Judge Russell on Saturday. He thought he could well be saved if the Recorder, acting as Supreme Court Commissioner, would sit with his colleagues on that day, and render his decision on the same arguments, which would be submitted before Judge Russell.

Mr. Tomlinson was willing to submit to the Recorder, if he would first permit the District Attorney to argue the question of law that might be raised.

The Recorder said that the Supreme Court Commissioner could not decide the points of law, but he subscribed to the propriety of the motion, and asked to have the case adjourned till after Saturday, for it was beginning to look like a school-boy matter.

Mr. Tomlinson was willing to submit to the Recorder, if he would permit the District Attorney to argue the question of law. He regarded the case a school-boy matter. The people in behalf of the State had arrested a citizen without a complaint, and had deprived him of his liberty for a period of twenty-four hours, without any complaint against him. It was the privilege of the Grand Jury to indict, if it was the privilege of the Grand Jury to indict without a complaint. Under these circumstances he would prefer to argue the case on the present time.

The Recorder said his convenience would be decidedly consulted by a disposal of the case as soon as possible. He was compelled to go to Utica next Saturday.

The District Attorney submitted the following points, which he slightly commented on, as the grounds of his application for the discharge of the writ:

I. The return sets forth a commitment by a Bench warrant under an indictment. It is submitted that there being regular on their face, all the officer has to do on habeas corpus is to remand on bail. The Revised Statutes (3d R. S., sec. 62, page 612) say that no certiorari to remove any indictment from a Court of General Sessions before trial thereof to the Supreme Court, or to any Court of Oyer and Terminer, shall hereafter be allowed. The spirit of this section would now seem to apply; for the indictment is a record importing verity upon its face, and cannot be inquired into, or impeached collaterally.—(People vs. Hurlbut, 4th Denio, 133. That was a case under a license law.)

II. If, however, the "officer" on this habeas corpus holds that the matters of the traverse are properly before him, then it is submitted that by 2d R. S., 4th ed., p. 803, every Court of Sessions shall have power to inquire by the oath of good and lawful men of the county, of all crimes and misdemeanors committed or triable in such county, and neither the New-York City Special Sessions act of 1855, nor the Excise law of 1857, have modified this, except that where specific complaints (meaning, as the context shows, sworn allegations on paper) are made of, or specific arrests are made for, violations of law of the grade of misdemeanor, the accused has a right to elect to be tried before a Special Sessions.—(Decision of Recorder Smith, in re. Pat. Hearne, for gambling, November, 1856.)

But if no complaint exist, the Grand Jury may still, as more note, originate or hear complaints, and find indictments.—(Charge of City Judge Russell, July T rm, 1857. Revised Statutes above cited, and the State Constitution. Common Law passim.)

III. The indictment appropriately describes the Excise misdemeanors.

It is a misdemeanor to sell liquor on Sunday. There is a civil penalty for publicly exposing liquor on Sunday (by Police Act.)

The misdemeanor will cover private sale without a public exposure proven.

The penalty will cover public exposure, although no sale is proved.

Mr. Tomlinson, in reply, based his argument on the points set forth in the traverse, elaborating and amplifying them.

The Recorder, at the conclusion of the arguments, stated that he would reserve his decision until Thursday next.

SUPREME COURT—SPECIAL TERM.

Judge BIRDSEYE opened a Special Term of this Court in Brooklyn yesterday. N. P. O'BRIEN, Esq., Counsel for JAMES FRCAN, whose hay was taken away and measured by JOHN H. STEVENS of the Eastern District of Brooklyn, moved for judgment in the amount of damages claimed.

Defendant, in his answer to the complaint, admits all that is charged, but claims that he had a right to do as he had done. Judgment was entered for $5,021 50.

BROOKLYN CITY COURT.—The September Civil Term of this Court was opened yesterday with a very heavy calendar. Out of the 57 jurors summoned only 8 answered when called, when a new panel of 90 was ordered for Monday next, to which time the Court adjourned.

NEW-YORK, Monday, Sept. 7.—P. M.

By the Steamships Arago, from Havre and Southampton, and Kangaroo, from Liverpool Aug. 29th, both at this port early to-day, we received European dates 4½ days later than those brought by the Asia. The news is not of a novel character. The London Money Market was easy, loan and discount rates remaining about the same. The English funds were moderately active. On the 25th ult., the first transactions in Consols for money were at 90⅝@⅞, and late in the afternoon they went back to 90⅝@⅞. For the 9th of September the closing price was 90⅝@⅞. The closing quotations of the French three per cents. on the Paris Bourse the same evening were 67f. for money and 66f. 90c. for the account, showing a decline of between an eighth and a quarter ⅌ cent. At the recent Wool sales in London the foreign demand was much larger than usual, and the rates established were higher than any known for several years past. The total quantity sold was 80,305 bales. The accounts from the manufacturing districts of England are generally satisfactory. In the Woolen districts there had been extensive shipments to America. The Birmingham Iron trade was steady, and in some instances an advance in prices had taken place. The Liverpool advices report large transactions and an advance of ⅛d. ⅌ lb. in Cotton; with increased depression in Breadstuffs,—owing to the generally very cheering harvest news buyers demanded a reduction before effecting purchases. Flour had declined 1s. and Wheat 2d.@4d. Corn was quiet, and yellow had declined 9d.@1s.; white was scarce and firm. Provisions were dull and buyers had any existing advantage. Coffee and Sugars were somewhat brisker and firmer in Liverpool as well as in London. Several additional failures were reported in Liverpool. That for £300,000 previously alluded to was the firm of BUCHANAN, BROWN & Co., produce brokers; and, in the Corn trade, there was the suspension of J. H. HAYES, with unascertained liabilities. The Australian clipper ship Lightning, built at Boston, was attracting great attention in the Thames, where she had gone to receive troops for India. A grand banquet had been given on board of her. The Arago has $100,000 in specie on freight.

The Official Averages of the Banks in the City of New-York, for the week ending Saturday last, Sept. 5, the particulars of which are advertised by each Bank separately, on another page of this paper, present in the aggregate the following changes from the previous weekly statement of Saturday, Aug. 29:

Decrease in Loans and Discounts	$4,867,454
Increase in Specie	968,589
Decrease in Undrawn Deposits	2,000,698

The Circulation changes but two thousand dollars. The liquidation of loans is made larger by about eleven hundred thousand dollars than it would otherwise have been by the failure of the Mechanics' Banking Association. No further weekly reports will be made by this concern. It has gone into the hands of a receiver. The decline in the deposit line is large. The ordinary dealers at Bank have been forced to draw down their balances to meet the curtailment of discounts. In other cases they have been drawn out to be loaned on paper, or to keep the needy. A third, but inconsiderable class, have drawn out their money in Gold from the panic fright of Tuesday last. The average increase of Specie is not quite equal to the general previous estimate in the Street, which ranged for the sum total from $10,500,000 to $11,000,000. The average is $10,227,965. The Gold actually in Bank this afternoon is of course larger, the average being a rising one at the close of last week. The daily exchanges at the Clearing House have fallen to an average of $22,281,208; less by five millions per day than a month ago. The Undrawn deposits have fallen to $57,260,109; less by ten or eleven millions than a month ago. So rapid a liquidation in the departments of loans and deposits, and in the daily clearances, has seldom been known as in the last fortnight. The fact is more remarkable as succeeding so soon the addition of five millions to the banking capital of the City.

Including the Clearing-House operations and Sub-Treasury balance, the following is the general comparison of items with the previous statement, and also with the corresponding date of last year:

COMPARATIVE RECAPITULATION.

	Sept. 6, 1856.	Sept. 5, 1857.	Aug. 29, 1857.
Capital	$58,985,000	$65,420,000	$65,420,000
Loans	109,848,694	112,291,868	116,588,919
Specie	15,096,808	10,237,965	9,341,376
Circulation	2,836,015	8,672,193	8,671,060
Gross Deposits	89,546,404	79,401,317	84,519,636
Exchanges	22,194,819	22,281,208	22,959,664
Undrawn	67,298,898	57,260,109	60,260,809
In Sub-Treasury	13,694,442	11,678,392	12,436,686

The discount market continues unsettled, and a wide range of terms obtains outside of Bank. Some of the Brokers report a better sale to-day for the higher grade of paper, though even this fluctuates from 12@18 ⅌ cent. ⅌ annum. The whole range of prime and fair bills we call 12@30 ⅌ cent. The Bank managers generally speak more cheerfully of their ability to discount this week, and it is hoped that the rapid curtailment as shown on the averages of last week and the week before will come to a pause. The trial has been a severe one on the Grain and Provision factors, drawn against at short dates from the West. Messrs. BATES, GRIFFIN & LIVERMORE, and Messrs. TUTTLE, CUTTING & Co., in this line, are reported suspended. One of our old auction firms, COFFIN & HAYDOCK, stopped payment to-day. The domestic commission house, whose paper laid over at 3 o'clock on Saturday, as noticed this morning, had all their acceptances certified at the Bank at which they were payable in season to prevent protest. The Sub-Treasury is again paying out largely, $554,147 to-day against only $192,888 received. The balance is reduced to $11,816,943. Demand loans among the Stock Brokers are not so difficult to obtain as Money on paper. The amount wanted, however, in this way is not large. The current quotations at the Stock Exchange are chiefly for cash. The sales at the early Board were moderate, and generally at improved prices. After the adjournment, prices on the speculative list were 1 ⅌ cent. lower on account of an unfavorable impression which got out as to the result of the Bank Statement. This decline continued at the Second Board, Reading selling at 50 after touching 54 in the forenoon; Erie 21¾; Toledo 88; Rock Island 77; New-York Central 75¾; Missouri sixes 71¾ ⅌ cent. The general market, after the actual figures of the Bank report were made known, left off rather steady.

E. H. LUDLOW & Co. announce a peremptory sale of 658 shares of the Ohio Life Insurance and Trust Company, for Tuesday, Sept. 8, 1857, at 12¾ o'clock, at the Merchants' Exchange.

We are authorized to state that the Receiver of Taxes is now allowing a rebate of interest on all taxes paid previous to 1st December next.

Money Circular for Europe.

Via Boston.] NEW-YORK, Monday, Sept. 7, 1857.

Our last advices are dated 1st inst. We have to report to-day quite a general improvement on our previous quotations. The market has experienced heavy fluctuations, and a feverish state of feeling has prevailed; but, owing to the absence of important failures during the last few days, and to the strengthened position of our Banks, stocks close with a steadier feeling. Considerable purchases have been made for investment during the last fortnight, and a large quantity of securities held on borrowed money by speculators, has passed at low prices into the hands of capitalists. The Banks who discounted but a trifling portion of their receipts the previous weeks have been somewhat more disposed this week to meet the pressure—but it is likely that for some time to come, a gradual contraction of their loans and discounts will go on. We have to report some failures in and out of the City. Money continues extremely stringent, first-class paper selling at 15 to 18 ⅌ cent., and second-class names being difficult to negotiate at 20 to 30 ⅌ cent. Exchanges have been inactive, and the rates show a wide range—London, chiefly at 109¾ to 109. State Stocks have advanced, with an active business, especially in Missouri, Virginia, Ohio and Indiana, which have been taken largely for investment. Virginia 2 ⅌ cent. higher. Missouri, after selling at 73, closes at 71¾, being a rise of ¼ ⅌ cent. Ohio, 1886, opened at 90, and afterwards sold at 95, with a sale at public auction previously of $120,000, at an average of 92.86. California, 1870 and 1875, have sold at 57 and 56¾, 3 ⅌ cent. rise. Indiana 5s have ranged from 75 to 71, closing at 75¾, being 1¾ ⅌ cent. below our last advices. Tennessee fell to 65, closing at 76; North Carolina 2 ⅌ cent. higher. City and County Bonds—Excepting a few sales at reduced prices of Cincinnati and Chicago 6s at auction, we have no sales to report. Railroad Bonds—Limited sales, excepting in Illinois Central and Terre Haute and Alton Second Mortgages, mostly at an advance. Erie Second Mortgages have risen 10 ⅌ cent.; do. Third Mortgages, 2. New-York Central 6s, 2¾ ⅌ cent. lower. Illinois Central Construction, 6¾ ⅌ cent. higher; do. Freeland Bonds, without privilege, 3¾, ex interest. Erie 1871 Bonds have sold at 90, being a decline of 2 ⅌ cent. Railroad Shares—Very irregular fluctuation—the general result being a decided rise on most of them, chiefly for cash. Illinois Central, after selling at 104, closes at 96. Erie has declined 2¾; New-York Central, 3¾; Panama, 4; Michigan Central, 3; Michigan Southern, 6¾; do. new issue, 12; Illinois Central, 5; Cleveland and Toledo, 4; Chicago and Rock Island, 2; Galena and Chicago, 8; Cleveland and Pittsburg, 2; Milwaukee and Mississippi, 7; La Crosse and Milwaukee, 5¾; Reading has declined 3 ⅌ cent., and Cleveland, Columbus and Cincinnati, 2¾ ⅌ cent. MARIE & KANZ.

Per America.] NEW-YORK, Monday, Sept. 7, 1857.

Since our last advices of 1st inst. we have had an excited and irregular market. The panic feeling has passed away, and prices, in many instances, have recovered themselves; but there is much uneasiness still existing. Towards the middle of the week prices advanced considerably, but the pressure for money was so great that new lots of stocks were thrown upon the market, and prices again receded, though not to the starting point. During the week large investments have been made, both in Shares and State Stocks. The transactions have been almost exclusively for cash. But few time operations are recorded. In State Stocks the movement has been large, with great change in prices from one day to the other. The chief transactions have been in Ohio 6 ⅌ cents. of 1886, which at one moment touched 96, but receded to 95. Tennessee 6 ⅌ cents, also fell to 65, but recovered to 76, a fall of 5 ⅌ cent. since our last. There were also large sales of Missouri 6 ⅌ cents, and Virginia 6 ⅌ cents., at irregular rates—both, however, closing higher than our last report. In City and County Bonds there has been nothing done during the week. In Railroad Bonds there has been considerable activity. The largest transactions were in Illinois Central Construction Bonds and New-York Central 6 ⅌ cents. The first we quote higher by 6¾ ⅌ cent., and the last lower by 1¾ ⅌ cent. In Railroad Shares the movement has been more moderate, and the transactions have been mostly for cash. In Reading there has been unusual excitement, and the price has varied 4 or 5 ⅌ cent., owing to rumored difficulty in its finances. In Illinois Central Shares, also, there has been the most extraordinary changes in price—falling to 86, rising to 110, and closing at 96¾. Money continues to be difficult to procure on any terms that are reasonable. The best of business paper is offered at from 12 to 24 ⅌ cent.
